

JOSEPH: PLAYWRIGHT OF BOUCHARDY

Murder
CONFUSION!

A Slightly True History by Olchar Lindson

Joseph Bouchardy was born in 1810 into a family of artists.

His mother tickled him with a feather, maybe.

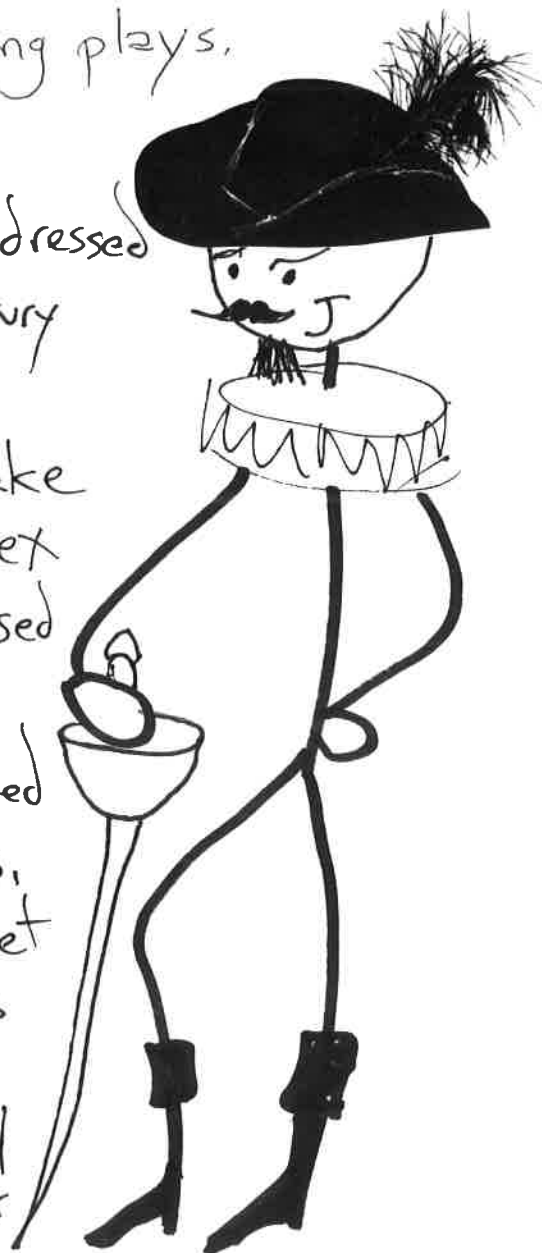

Ha, ha! WAAAH!
wAAAAH! Hee-hee!

We don't know what he looked like, but I assume he had facial hair.

He started to become an engraver, but instead joined the Bouzingo, was obsessed with Gothic Horror, and started writing plays.

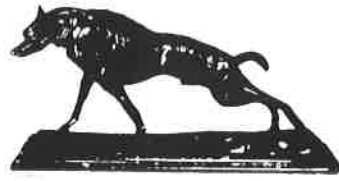

Also:

- He sometimes dressed like a 17th Century Cavalier.
- He tried to make plots so complex they even confused him.
- He made detailed maps of castles, trapdoors & secret passages for his plays.
- He spelled VERY strangely (grammar too)

A FAKE BOUCHARDY PLAY:

Princess Leonorella is chased away by the Hell-Dog, Manfred, & everyone thinks her dead.

Now cured of his madness, Renaldo roams the world, determined to murder Manfred.

Disguised as a Peasant-Centaur, she refuses the advances of the evil Bernardo, Manfred's nephew-in-law.

At last, disguised as a rider-horse with a rider-friend, Renaldo (using the name Jared) finds Manfred, and kills him in revenge.

#9

They learn that Fernando & Filipo are, in fact, Manfred's long-lost twin sons. Leonorella adopts them as her own.

#3

Meanwhile, her long-lost brother, Renaldo, has run away to become a mad-man, strangling birds that he mistakes for Leonorella's supposed murderer.

#4: Having knifed Bernardo, Leonorella becomes a shepherdess & adopts two mysterious whelps named Fernando and Filipo, living in honest poverty.

#6- She is not a mermaid, but his long-lost sister, Leonorella.

#5: Renaldo meets a lady who, in his madness, he thinks is a mermaid.

People loved his plays.

Her throne is restored & justice is restored Etc. etc. #10

The plays were wildly popular.
He was called the "King of the Boulevards".....

CLOSED

Alas!

.....until boring plays about normal things came into fashion.

The curtains closed on Bouchardy in 1870, one of the last of the Bouzingo to die.
